ISRAEL AND A NUCLEAR IRAN

"Is Iran building a nuclear weapon?" Little is known for certain. However, on June 6, 2008, Israeli Transport Minister, Shaul Mofaz said, "If Iran continues with its program for developing nuclear weapons, we will attack it."

Persian Incursion explores the political and military consequences of an Israeli military campaign against Iran's nuclear infrastructure. It uses rules adapted from Harpoon<sup>4</sup> to resolve the military action, combined with a card-based political and intelligence component. The players can use information warfare, dirty political tricks, or covert intelligence operations to shape the battlespace in their favor.

Players spend Political, Intelligence and Military Points to influence allies or enemies, purchase reinforcements, execute military strikes or shape their own domestic opinion. Players choose variable starting conditions that shape scenarios, while random strategic events influence play in unexpected ways.
